John L. Scott Announces Opening of University Village Office

Seattle—J. Lennox Scott, chairman and CEO of John L. Scott Real Estate, announces the opening of a new branch office in Northcut Landing, a retail and commercial center located along the western boundary of University Village. With this move, the office previously known as John L. Scott Laurelhurst, is now John L. Scott University Village. Scott says the need for a new location is to accommodate the growth of the office, as well as the active real estate economy in the surrounding neighborhoods.

“The neighborhoods surrounding the University Village complex are some of the fastest growing areas in King County,” said Scott. “The opening of our new University Village office will enable our team to provide even greater support to those buyers, sellers, and homeowners.”

The University Village office, which is located at 5001 25th Avenue NE, Suite 300, Seattle WA 98105, provides a more visible and convenient location for John L. Scott sales associates and their clientele. The office currently has enough space for up to 60 agents with a specially designed area for the increasing number of “mobile agents” who do not require permanent desk space.

The John L. Scott University Village office is managed by Judi Hinson, who has been a licensed real estate professional for over 30 years and has extensive experience in real estate sales, management, and John L. Scott’s cutting-edge technology tools.

“This state of the art new construction site boasts the latest technology, the greatest in support staff, a non-competing broker, and a high-energy environment,” said Hinson. “We designed the office with all of the support programs and services needed by new real estate agents and experienced professionals alike, including full time, in-house loan officers from Response Mortgage Services,” says Hinson.
